A commercial driver's license (CDL) driver's license required georgia to work any type of vehicle that transports quantities of hazardous appliances that require warning placards under Department of Transportation rules is designed to move 16 or more passengers, including the driver. This includes (but is limited to) two trucks, tractor trailers, and buses. Gross vehicle weight rating (GVWR) of 26,001 pounds or more is for commercial use of CDL, which is ruled by the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986. CDL rules are designed to ensure highway security by requiring truck drivers and tractor and bus trailer drivers to meet minimum standards. It also allows the removal of drivers deemed unsafe or unqualifying. States like Georgia are given the authority to issue commercial driver's licenses, but the federal government's minimum requirements must be met. Prepare for your GA CDL tests with our free Georgia CDL practice test Georgia CDL License Group-GA CDL commercial driver license classes issued by Georgia in response to CDL license classes specified below. Group A (hybrid vehicle) CDL licenses any vehicle or combination of vehicles that have a gross combined weight rating (GCWR) of 26,001 pounds or more providing GVWR of vehicle(s) being toweled over 10,000 pounds. If you have a GROUP CDL license, you are not allowed to drive any vehicle or combination of vehicles of any size. Group B (heavy direct vehicle) CDL licenses any vehicle with only GVWR of 26,001 pounds or more, or any vehicle including towing a vehicle lower than 10,000 pounds GVWR. With group B CDL license, you may be allowed to drive any vehicle only regardless of weight. As well, you are allowed to have two trailers if the trailer is a gross vehicle weight rating (GVWR) More than 10,000 pounds if your trailer may be towing up to GVWR over 10,000 pounds, and the car mix ranks weighing more than 26,000 pounds, you'll need a CDL class. Group C (Small Vehicle) CDL Class C CDL license means covering any vehicle only, or a combination of vehicles, which does not meet the definition of Group A or Group B, but which is either designed to move sixteen or more passengers (including the driver), or is intended to move hazardous materials (HazMat). With a GROUP CDL license, you may drive any vehicle designed to move sixteen or more passengers, along with the driver, if the GVWR is lower than 26,001 pounds and you confirm the passenger. As well, cdl C-class also helps you to work any vehicle used to move hazardous materials if the GVWR is less than 26,001 pounds and you get the approval right. Georgia CDL exams overview for CDL GA licenses include both skill tests and knowledge tests. CDL knowledge tests include a general exam, a number of verification exams, and an aerial brake test. The tests you will do depend on the license classification that you obtain (Class A, B, or C) and the type of vehicle that you will be driving (as such, tanker, double/triple, passenger bus). Please consult our free Georgia CDL practice exams that can help you prepare for your CDL GA exams. Public testing drivers overview of each CDL class should pass a public knowledge review that includes questions about driving safety, vehicle inspections, street signs, legal traffic guidelines and other information it values to determine the driving of a commercial vehicle in Georgia. An overview of the confirmation test in addition to the general knowledge test, it is necessary to also take and pass various confirmation examinations depending on the type of vehicle that you will be operating. The verification tests are described below. Tanker approval - to drive a commercial tank vehicle (more than £26,000) designed to move any liquid or gaseous materials inside a tank that is permanently or temporarily attached to the vehicle or chassis. Moving tanks with a rating capacity below 1000 gallons do not have to confirm this. Confirmed trailers two and three - to drag double and triple trailers. Passenger approval - to drive any vehicle, in addition to the school bus, designed to keep 16 or more people, along with the driver. School bus approval - required to drive a school bus designed to carry 16 or more people, along with the driver who transports students to or from the school and authorized school activities. In addition, a driver must receive passenger approval before obtaining school bus approval. Confirm hazardous materials - to drive any vehicle carrying hazardous materials. Hazmat materials are identified by the Federal Department of Health and Human Services and require a hazmat placard. Air The test should you plan on driving any commercial vehicle that has air brakes, you should take and pass the air brake examination round the air brake limits of your CDL. The aerial brake test is completely different from the verification exams because the aerial brake examination works as a constraint rather than a confirmation. If you don't pass an aerial brake examination, your CDL will bear a sign of limitation which means you have a driver's license for a commercial vehicle with air brakes. Georgia CDL license requirements and GA CDL general jurisdiction in maintaining with federal regulations, the CDL operator is eligible to drive a commercial motor vehicle in Georgia if they are: at least 21 years old.
